The railroad pass in Vermont is passing.

The Vermont legislature promises to "kidnap" on the 23rd of the month, which is correct according to the slang of the day.

It is said that liquor develops the fighting qualities of the human being, but water is certainly having a similar effect on Brattleboroians.

William H. Hearst has just shown that he wishes to confine sensational journalism to others than himself, and he can't be blamed either.

With a supreme court of four members, what is to hinder a deadlock? Because Vermont supreme court judges have generally been united on propositions that come up to them, it is not absolute evidence that they will be united in future cases.

It is hailed as a great thing up in Vermont because a Democrat has a leading place in the legislature. That sort of thing is entirely familiar and acceptable down here in New Hampshire, where for ten years "Billy" Aherne has been by all odds the most potential member of our lower house.—Concord, N. H., Monitor.

The speaker of the House made no mistake in placing the Democrat above referred to in one of the most important positions in the assembly. As the guardian of the state's strong box through the appropriations committee, Eli Porter is showing that conservatism which he was credited with at the start. He is working valiantly to keep down the unnecessary expenditures which the reckless members of the body are trying to pile up.

Maxwell Everts of Windsor, Vt., has been a leader in persuading the Vermont legislature to provide for the establishment of a state fair. A commission of 14, to be appointed by Gov. Proctor, is to have the matter in hand, and Burlington people are ready to give $25,000 or more to have the state fair grounds located there. The bill which the legislature has passed relieves the state from the liability of having to make good any deficit which the enterprise may encounter.—Springfield Republican.

But the Vermont legislature is only half persuaded yet; the state fair bill must go before the Senate for ratification. In order to get a doubtful support of the House, the vote standing 100 to 96, Mr. Maxwell had to materially amend the bill so that the state of Vermont is largely eliminated from the project. The use of the name, the state fair, now seems to be the most valuable asset for the movement.

BARRE SAVINGS BANK & TRUST COMPANY

We wish to call your attention to the NEW LAW which the legislature has just passed allowing depositors to have $2,000 in this and every other Savings Bank and Trust Company in the State free from all taxes to the depositor. Under the old law the total deposit in all Banks in the State could not exceed $2,000 without the depositor paying taxes on the sum in excess of $2,000, but now this limit is removed.

It is not necessary to have $2,000 before making a deposit, but amounts from $1.00 up are received. All depositors are welcome and receive equal courtesy.

Benny Underdone.
The "tailor made girl" may be first in the whirl of gay fashion, but not more charming is she than the "ready made girl."
She's the best of the lot.
—Baltimore American.

Succumbent Job.
"Has young Underdone any occupation?" asked the dear girl's mother.
"Indeed he has," replied the dear girl. "He's raising a mustache."
—Chicago News.

Fate.
I shot an arrow in the air,
Nor marked the course on which it sped.
Then—jumping cats, how I did swear!
The blamed thing landed on my head.
—Philadelphia Press.

Rich.
"Is he rich enough to run over people in his auto?"
"Why, man alive! He's rich enough to run over policemen!"
—Judge.

Odd, isn't it?
A man is often in his cups
When drinking from a mug,
And he who's often in his cups
Is oftener in jug.
—Philadelphia Press.

The Only Way.
"He earned $10,000 last year with his pen."
"Goodness! What did he expose?"
New York Times.

Misconstrued Him.
The editor wrote, "I pine, I die,
For you, oh, apple of my eye!"
The maid replied, "Your joke is neat.
But this pineapple's not to eat."
—Judge.

On One Condition.
Meanley—No, sir, I don't believe in paying fancy prices to have clothes made to order. Now, here's a suit I bought ready made for $9.99. If I should tell you I paid $25 for it, wouldn't you believe it?
Knox—I might if you told me over the telephone.
—Philadelphia Press.

Just Like Charlie.
"I bet I know something that you don't," said her little brother.
"What is it?" the young man asked.
"When sister kissed Fido last night she rubbed her nose and said, 'Oh, you tickle just like Charlie since he's begun to raise a mustache!'"
—Chicago Record-Herald.

Nothing but the Truth.
His Wife (angrily)—So you have nothing but your income. When you proposed to me you said you had money to burn.
Her Husband—And I told you the truth, my dear. Haven't I just paid for a ton of coal?
—Boston Transcript.

Not His Fault.

The Fat One—My husband doesn't support me like he used to.
The Thin One—Well, when you married him you only weighed about a hundred pounds.
—Philadelphia Press.

HOMES FOR WORKERS.

Success of a Model Village Near Birmingham, England.

Desires of alleviating the evils which arise from the insanitary and insufficient accommodations supplied to large numbers of the working classes and of securing to workers in factory some of the advantages of outdoor village life, with opportunities for the natural and healthful cultivation of the soil, George Cadbury, a manufacturer of cocoa and chocolate, has established a model village in Birmingham, England, near his chocolate factory. Not only does it provide dwellings for the work people, but, says W. R. Holt in the London Tribune, it is a materialization of the dreams of those who dream of an England in which there shall be no crowding and no slums, an England combining the fresh air and fresh vegetables of rusticity with the amenities of a prosperous commercial life.

The spot chosen by Mr. Cadbury for his experiment is located about four miles from the business center of Birmingham. In the midst of green fields a village was created, with individual cottages nestled among trees, gardens and creepers. The villagers grow their own vegetables, and children in clean white pinafores play on the lawns. The houses have every convenience—bath, water and sanitary arrangements—and nearly every one has three bedrooms. The rentals are low, and so popular is the arrangement that there is keen competition for every house as it becomes vacant or as a new one is built. The health of the villagers is excellent, the death rate in a thousand being about one-third of that of some of the industrial districts of Birmingham, while infant mortality is a little more than half that of the average for England and Wales.

"It is all like a great fresh breeze of health," says Mr. Holt, "the neat cottages and gardens, the wooded park used as a recreation ground for girls, the open air swimming bath and the fine football ground, the village green, the schools, the churches and the clubs. Busting Birmingham might be forty miles away instead of four."

LABOR TO THE FRONT.

Trades Unions Are Striving for Betterment of Manhood.

Like the Christian religion, the fact that organized labor has its foes to contend with is indicative of its value as a powerful uplifting factor among men; hence it is not infrequent that an opponent has the effrontery to hurl an undeserved anathema with a vengeance into its ranks, but, like unskilled natives of the isle experimenting with a boomerang, often miss their aim, the missile taking a retrograde direction, only to make themselves the victims.

Labor unions, existing, as they do, through straightforward methods the sympathy and co-operation of all fair minded people, have nothing to lose, but, on the other hand, a world to gain. In confirmation of the truth of labor's advancement it is but expedient to take a retrospective view of conditions of the past in comparison with the present, and in so doing the efficacy of the efforts of organized labor is vividly manifest. From a chaotic state have the toiling classes through labor unions reached the height to which an all wise Creator intended they should attain.

However, if our antagonists can produce argument sufficient to assure us an advancement at a more rapid pace, we are ready and willing to give attentive ear to the same, but not until then are we willing to digress from the principle and methods by which we enjoy the liberty to which American citizens are entitled.

The champions of organized labor have arisen in their might and will contend for those conditions which will better enable the workman to fulfill the purpose for which he was created—namely, to perform his duty to God and man.

With this purpose ever before him and working to this end, nothing but success can crown the efforts of the laborer and artisan, the end unto which he achieves and the consummation devoutly to be wished."
—John Gildish in Atlanta Constitution.

The Union Labor Exposition.
The union labor exposition, which was planned to be held in Minneapolis during the two weeks that the convention of the American Federation of Labor will be in session there, has been abandoned for the present. It was found that a suitable building could not be procured and the time was too limited to make the exposition a success. Now it is proposed to hold it at Jamestown, Va., next summer, when the world's fair is being held there. The management of the Jamestown exposition is ready to give the American Federation of Labor all the space it requires for an exhibit and, in addition, will give it the benefit of the publicity department to advertise it.

Ashantee of Africa.
The Ashantee of Africa are perhaps the most cruel and demoralized of the races that people the earth. Their drums are decorated with human skulls and bones.

EDITORIAL FLINGS.

That Englishman who is talking about "the joyless American face" never saw us on pay day.—Toledo Blade.

A leading English physician recommends a "silent hour" in the home every day, an impossibility in many homes.—Akron (O.) Beacon-Journal.

Sir Thomas Lipton says that American women are the best in the world. We had Sir Thomas "scooped" on that information a long time ago.—Cathage Democrat.

In Massachusetts a woman is raising a disturbance because she found a cigar stump in her sausage. Under the new law it should have been labeled, "This sausage contains high grade Havana filler."
—Cleveland Leader.

A New York woman was awarded alimony at the rate of $8 a week. For eleven years she allowed her husband to pay her $32 a month. She has only just woke up to the fact that she is out $360. More attention should be paid to mathematics in girls' schools.
—Buffalo Express.

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

Thirty-six policemen have joined the London county council special class for instruction in Yiddish.

The number of horses is steadily increasing in England, notwithstanding the multiplication of motor cars.

It has been suggested in London that all of the unemployed be placed on the juries, for which service 50 cents a day is paid.

A statue in Wells cathedral, England, representing "The Fruit Stealer," is almost an exact copy of the features of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman. The statue is carved on a capital in the nave of the beautiful church and is about 600 years old.

The British confectioners are making a determined effort to secure the repeal of the sugar duty, alleging that they cannot make reasonable profits under present conditions. The prospect is not hopeful, as the government needs the revenue from the duty.

FACTS FROM FRANCE.

A man has been imprisoned in Paris for making his donkey helplessly drunk in the streets.

There is at present in the Mont de Piete at Paris a necklace which Marie Therese of Austria gave to her daughter, Marie Antoinette. It is in pawn for $8,000.

Workmen who were digging a trench in the Rue de la Vieille Peterie, Orleans, France, discovered the remains of the first statue erected to the memory of Joan of Arc. The monument is 18 years old and was partly melted down for cannon balls in 1792.

A French barrister, whose client had his misfortune to be found guilty, appealed on the ground that during the trial a jurymen was asleep. The court of cassation has held that the jurymen, being asleep, was technically not present during the hearing, and has quashed the verdict and ordered a new trial.

Plums.
More energy can be extracted from one pound of plums than can be got from a pound of fresh pears or even from a pound of dried figs or a pound of prunes.

Whole Wheat.
It is a recommendation from a dietetic authority that whole wheat grains are an excellent pick me up between meals when the craving for a bit of food is strong. The wheat kernels should be well chewed and are better, according to the dietitian quoted, than the usual cracker taken at such times.

Alligator and Crocodile.
Among the many differences between the alligator and the crocodile there is a striking one—the alligator never leaves fresh water, while the crocodile often goes to sea.

Perhaps.
Towne—That's the local weather forecaster who just passed us.
Brown—Indeed? He isn't a very healthy looking man, is he?
Towne—No. He says the climate here doesn't agree with him.
Brown—Yes? I wonder if that's why he keeps changing it so much?
—Catholic Standard and Times.

Not Sinkable.
The Bearded Lady—Mercy! Are you going to marry the fat man?
The Fair Circassian—Yes. I felt so sorry for him. He said he'd drown himself if I didn't accept him.
The Bearded Lady—Drown himself? Why, say, you'd have to tie the anchors to his feet to drag him under water!
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

One Complaint.
Father-in-law—Now, my dear son-in-law, tell me honestly whether you are satisfied with my daughter.

Son-in-law—My dear Herr Schmidt, I have nothing at all to complain of—except perhaps that you didn't throw me out when I asked for her hand in marriage.—Bombe.

DR. BULLARD'S LINIMENT

If your joints are stiff, if the ligaments are swollen or strained, if the muscles are weak, if there's a sprain which is painful, if the back aches, if the head aches, if you have any indication which calls for a splendid Liniment, we want you to keep in mind that Bullard's Liniment is more worthy of a strong recommendation than any Liniment at your disposal in Barre. This is a strong statement, nevertheless every word of it is true. For years we have been supplying Bullard's Liniment to the people of this community, every day the sale increases, and we never yet had one single complaint regarding it. It is a Liniment which is really a wonder when it comes to curing stiffness, reducing swelling and the like. Nothing better for sore throat. Price 25 cents.
